SPECIAL ISSUES 2025

Impactful materials

Material wirkt

Cooperation of db deutsche Bauzeitung and md INTERIOR DESIGN ARCHITECTURE

Publication date: July 2025

For the sixth time, the specialist editorial teams of md and db are pooling their expertise to take an all-round look under the motto „Material wirkt“ (Impactful materials). They explore buildings where everything is just right. Projects that have been consistently planned and realised with materials in mind, both on the inside and outside.

More information on architektur.konradin.de or in the detailed theme plans starting on page 20.

Designed for indulgence

Gestaltet für Genuss

md INTERIOR DESIGN ARCHITECTURE

Publication date: September 2025

Interiors engage all the senses, blending visual, acoustic, tactile, and olfactory elements. This special issue highlights projects, best practices and products that celebrate spaces designed for indulgence: from kitchens and restaurants to hotels and spas.

Projects that blew us away

Projekte, die uns umgehauen haben

Publication date: December 2025

A special issue featuring your reference project together with the architectural firm involved, including background information, interviews and a project information board on a double-page spread. Also available as an e-paper.

Theme	Building differently	Stony	Construction engineering	In the countryside	Healthcare buildings
Description	For the construction turnaround to succeed, buildings must be designed circular, reversible and with sufficiency in mind. This trade fair edition for BAU 2025 continues our long-standing db series "Anders Bauen".	Natural stone, masonry, and bricks represent durability and craftsmanship. In this issue, we focus on both the load-bearing and cladding applications of stone building elements.	We showcase projects where the contribution of structural engineers has been crucial to the success of the project, as well as exploring the latest technical developments and opportunities in civil engineering.	In many villages, the infrastructure is thinning out and the townscape, which in some cases has evolved over centuries, is being neglected. How can architecture be used to counteract such developments in the countryside?	Based on current projects, we examine trends and challenges in healthcare building design and ask how architecture can contribute to patient wellbeing.
Building in existing contexts in every issue	News/technology Building technology, building regulations, teaching & research, examples from practice	Halls Renovating or converting exhibition halls, warehouses, factories, or sports facilities can be a lucrative business, often resulting in large contracts for architecture firms and the construction industry. Description	Special issue "Material wirkt" (Impactful materials) in cooperation with md INTERIOR DESIGN ARCHITECTURE. Which material fulfils the desired function? Projects whose external and/or internal impact is strongly influenced by the material used.	Are there typical Saxon building styles? How do we deal with the (GDR's) architectural heritage and how do current buildings characterise cities such as Leipzig or Dresden, but also Chemnitz, one of the two European Capitals of Culture in 2025?	Building with natural materials such as clay, wood or straw is becoming increasingly important. We present ecologically sound projects that focus on climate justice, building biology and user health.	Infill development and adding storeys are key elements in creating living space in cities. Our focus is on projects that promise not only high-quality but also affordable housing.	In December, we once again invite you on a voyage of discovery to the editors' favourite projects. All projects will be presented under db's usual critical eye.
Building in existing contexts in every issue		Obsolete transport buildings Garages, multi-storey car parks, railway stations – unused transport infrastructure is abandoned in many places. EDITORIAL SCHEDULE 2025

Issue	01-02/2025	03-04/2025	05-06/2025	Special issue
PD	06.02.2025	28.03.2025	30.05.2025	04.07.2025
AD/MD	10.01.2025	03.03.2025	30.04.2025	20.05.2025
Theme	Lifelong learning Office: Finding qualified employees is becoming increasingly difficult and companies need to do more to retain staff. From flooring and greenery to acoustics, how can office space encourage people to join and stay? Education & public buildings: Whether in schools, universities, libraries or museums, there are places that are specifically designed to impart knowledge. What interior design elements contribute to this? What ideas could office designers adapt? Lighting: The principle of Human Centric Lighting is well established. But is light that promotes concentration and well-being a technical or a design issue? The interplay of visual, psychological and biological factors in lighting design.	The future of living Housing: 'My home is my castle' used to be the motto. But people are increasingly drawn back to public spaces. md showcases sustainable smart homes as well as spaces such as cafés and co-working spaces that function as extended living rooms, offering a cosy ambience. Bathroom: Sustainable and barrier-free, homely and durable: there are many facets to the bathroom experience. MD presents pioneering solutions with a special focus on ISH novelties. Kitchen: In the kitchen, food takes centre stage – right? Discover which colour and material concepts enhance this focus and how spatial designs and fixtures keep everything in order.	The ultimate office escape/workation Office: How are companies adapting to reduced office space needs due to hybrid work? Are they downsizing, increasing coworking areas, or repurposing spaces for other uses? What interior designers need to know about creating flexible work environments. Hotel: Temporary spaces – not just for sleeping, but also for working. From temporary flats to coworking spaces and architect retreats. Flooring: How is a successful mix of different flooring materials achieved? What effects does it create? Which flooring is best suited for which application – and how does the flooring differ depending on the application, from office to library to hotel?	impactful Materials Special issue "Material wirkt" in cooperation with db deutsche bauzeitung Interior design and architecture are closely related disciplines. This special issue focuses on showcase projects. Whether living and enjoying art in brickwork, working in metal and glass or studying in wood, what the projects have in common is that they have been consistently planned and realised with an eye to materials, both inside and out. In-depth product sections show which surfaces and materials can be used to realise projects holistically – and which switch haptics complement different materials.

EDITORIAL SCHEDULE 2025

Issue	07-08/2025	Special issue	09-10/2025	11-12/2025
PD	01.08.2025	03.09.2025	02.10.2025	28.11.2025
AD/MD	07.07.2025	07.08.2025	05.09.2025	03.11.2025
Theme	Invisible design Sustainability: Interior designers often work in existing buildings. md showcases projects, personalities and innovative products that breathe new life into these spaces. Materials: Walls and floors, wallpaper and paint The ultimate playground for interior design. What do surfaces need to deliver, endure, and how should they be designed? Architectural psychology: Why do spaces feel the way they do? md interviews architectural psychologists, explores trends and offers guidelines for mastering lighting, acoustics, ventilation and colour design.	Design for indulgence Interiors engage all the senses, blending visual, acoustic, tactile and olfactory elements. This special issue highlights projects, best practices and products that celebrate spaces designed for indulgence: from kitchens and restaurants to hotels and spas. Focusing on the product groups: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Kitchens and accessories - Sanitary - Living room furniture - Contract furniture - Materials 	Rules versus creativity Office: How do developments and trends in other areas of interior design influence office design? Hotels and restaurants, educational institutions and private homes serve as model. Acoustics: How appropriate is it to rely solely on meeting standards? Are other factors equally important? When should acoustic planning be integrated into the design process to achieve a holistic result? Inhumane architecture: We've all been there: The restaurant where you can't hear yourself think. The workplace with glaring lights that strain your eyes. The bench that's designed to make you get up quickly. And all those design details that are inelegantly solved because standards dictate otherwise. md examines these intentionally uncomfortable spaces – and shows how to do it better.	Change of perspective Building for children: From doctor's surgeries to nursery schools, from classrooms to homes: how to design for young people – and what to consider when choosing healthy flooring, colours and more? Interior design and craftsmanship: From carpenters to electricians to painters: No design is complete without those who bring it to life. How does ideal communication between office and construction site work? How can one overcome reservations in realising complex ideas? And how can you benefit from the expertise of craftsmen? Restaurant: Interior design concepts for hospitality must increasingly focus on technology, personalization, sustainability and flexibility to create an exceptional experience. How to create smart spaces without losing their charm.
