UNFOLDING SPATIAL POTENTIAL

.OFFICE

How does a people-centred approach shape office design? How can spaces support both exchange and focus? And, according to research, which working environment offers the best conditions: private offices or multispace concepts? The new issue of md explores these questions.

.SUSTAINABILITY

As climate targets tighten and space becomes scarcer, the reuse and transformation of existing spaces and buildings is becoming increasingly important. Interior architects demonstrate new approaches to working with existing structures through refurbishment, circular design strategies and the reuse of materials and furniture.

.FLOORING

Flooring is moving back into focus in interior architecture – as a sustainable, acoustically effective and visually defining element. md presents current developments and implemented solutions that expand the designer's toolkit.
