PLACES OF REMEMBRANCE – PROJECTS

Architecture gives shape to history, memory, grief and remembrance through carefully considered design, materials and symbolism. We present different forms and places of remembrance, including the “Museum 1632” in Lützen, a farewell hall made of rammed earth, a visitor centre at the Margraten memorial site in the Netherlands and a landscape park of remembrance on the German-Czech border.

BUILDING WITHIN EXISTING CONTEXTS – GIVING EMPTY OFFICES A NEW LEASE OF LIFE

Housing is the priority: Vacant offices could hold one answer to the housing shortage facing many cities. A Frankfurt start-up is demonstrating how quickly and efficiently underused workspaces can be transformed into apartments. We also explore strategies for modernising existing buildings with sustainability in mind.

TIMBER CONSTRUCTION DEFECTS AND THEIR CAUSES IN THE BUILDING PROCESS

Why do some timber buildings stand the test of time while others develop defects? The decisive factors are often found in the project process, not the building material itself. This feature looks at how risks and damage can be prevented early on, focusing on technical timber construction planning, interface management and weather protection.

CURRENT DEVELOPMENTS IN CONSTRUCTION LAW

Our reader feedback shows that the articles in the "Construction Law Update" section are highly valued, particularly for their clear and practice-oriented presentation of complex topics. We examine current legal developments affecting the construction process – from contract drafting and liability issues to new standards.
